COMMISSIONERS PRAISED FOR NEW COURT HOUSE

Speakers at Dedication Strongly Indorse Improvements.

COMMENDED BY ORVIS

Judge Says Building will be Monument to Woodring, Zimmerman and Dunlap—"Stand by Commissioners to Last Drop," Declares Beaver.

With simple and impressive ceremonies, Centre County's remodeled Court House was on Friday, last, rededicated and formally turned over to the citizens by County Commissioners Woodring, Zimmerman and Dunlap. Excessive heat and threatening rain storms served to keep away many persons who otherwise would have been delighted to attend. As it was, however, the Court House was thronged with residents of Bellefonte and all parts of Centre and adjoining counties.

For the improvements to the Court House, for the splendid manner in which the work was done and for the economy and honesty governing the execution of the work, Judge Ellis L. Orvis and General James A. Beaver accorded unstinted praise and emphatic indorsement to the County Commissioners, Jacob Woodring, H. E. Zimmerman and John L. Dunlap. Judge Beaver complimented the Board of Commissioners on the fact that, unlike public building operations in some other counties, there has not been so much as a hint of graft in the remodeling of the Court House in Centre County. To this he added the interesting statement that the total cost of all the improvements to the Court House was far below the cost of the consultation room alone of the Supreme Court, in Philadelphia. Judge Orvis is a Democrat but he did not allow this to interfere with his honest judgment in proclaiming the work of the Board of Commissioners well and honestly and economically done.

There were but three addresses owing to the fact that the exercises were cut short by threatening weather and the desire of visitors to catch trains for home before the rain should fall. Rev. John Hewitt, of the Bellefonte St. John's Protestant Episcopal church, made a beautiful opening prayer, asking for Divine blessing upon not only the ceremonies of the day but upon the proceedings which in future years will attend the disposition of legal cases. Judge Orvis, in a brief but splendidly prepared and well delivered address, then formally presented the remodeled Court House to the citizens of Centre County. On behalf of the people the Court House was accepted by Dr. E. E. Sparks, president of State College, whose address was in an especially happy vein, complimenting the people on having such a well improved Court House, on having a Board of Commissioners who were in keeping with the times and on the manifestation of approval on all sides of the efforts of the Board of Commissioners to perform their duties. General Beaver then spoke, his address proving to be an interesting historical narrative of the Centre County bar. The speeches of Judge Orvis and General Beaver are regarded as valuable contributions to the archives of Centre County and in appreciation of this fact are published in full in "The Republican." The exercises were brought to a close with the pronouncing of the benediction by Rev. Dr. Ezra H. Yocum, pastor of the Bellefonte Methodist Episcopal church. Col. D. F. Fortney, of Bellefonte, had prepared an address and Judge H. M. McClure, of Union County, and several others were expected to speak, but were excused rather than that the audience be detained. The address by Judge Orvis follows:

Ladies and gentlemen, citizens of Centre County, and honored and welcome visitors from sister counties:

It has been assigned to me the distinguished and grateful duty of presiding over this meeting and making the presentation address which, from the length of the program, must necessarily be as brief as possible.

Architecture in all ages and among all people is the most enduring, costly and noble means of embodying that people's highest aspirations. On the banks of the Nile the mysterious religion of Isis and of Osiris is better typified in its pyramids and monoliths than in its hieroglyphics. Along the eastern shores and upon the isles of Mediteranean we find the marble remains of the temples of ancient Hellas where best is embalmed the spirit of the poetic myths and legends of the ancient Greeks. So in the sands of Africa and Asia the mosque and graceful minaret which we know as Saracenic architecture, portrays the Moslem's faith; while through central and northern Europe the spire and pointed arch best illustrates the spirit of medieval Christianity; for, as has been said, each Gothic church is a prayer, petrified in stone, of the great Gothic races. Each perfect building should be not only a history but in behalf a prophesy; a history of the past and projecting itself into the ages to come. In America, where we have no common national religion, the aspirations of our people best show themselves in the capitols, the homes of legislation, and in the temples of justice that adorn and embellish each county town.

Thus it is that this beautiful building in which we now assemble meets these requirements. In 1795 James Dunlap and James Harris founded this town of Bellefonte, and in the same year dedicated the ground upon which we now stand to the uses of the future Court House. It was the same year that the most distinguished historical character of the Napoleanic period, the Prince de Tallyrand visited the home of Mrs. Harris, now known as "Willow Bank," and gave to the infant village its present name of Bellefonte. Five years later this County of Centre was created, and five years still later, or in 1805, this Court House was begun and has though with additions and repairs preserved an uninterrupted continuity of existence to its present almost perfect beauty and symmetry. Thus has this single building been projected in the eighteenth century, been the centre of our municipal life through all the nineteenth century, and reaches its greatest utility and beauty in the second decade of the twentieth century. There are none in this audience, possibly none in this county, that can recall the exterior front of our Court House to be other than as it is to lay. None of us without reflection can realize what this building means to the people of this County. For a portion of two centuries it has safeguarded the archives of county and family history, Here are maintained the title to the lands, the records of our properties, of our loans, and of our business papers. Here, through all the generations have been preserved the record of each dead man's estate, the litigations between our peoples. Here have been preserved the names and dates of our children's births and the deaths and burials of our loved ones. It is to this place the blushing bridegroom must come for his marriage license. In this forum have been waged the great legal battles. Here has been heard generations after generations the wit, the eloquence, the learning of the great judges and lawyers of the past. So are preserved within these walls the biography of all our citizens, the history of our community. Thus cluster around the building the most precious memories, associations and traditions. What farmer of mature years is not delighted to tell to his auditors the story of famous law suits and great legal battles! All this is peculiarly true of this building, for the history of our early bar is unusually rich in distinguished advocates and learned judges who have effected most potently not only the law and history of this locality but of the state and nation.

It is thus apparent, when urgent circumstances demanded the enlargement of this building, that these additions and alterations should be in harmony with its dignified Greek portico and be as dignified as its history and as noble as its uses and purposes. We cannot, therefore, too much commend the wisdom displayed by the present Board of County Commissioners in doing their work so economically and so well, avoiding patchwork and, cheap economies, and thereby bringing this building to a condition that it will serve all the purposes of Centre County for generations to come. In saying this I am aware that there has been adverse criticism and there are rumors that there is considerable objection to their work in some of the remoter sections of the county. All these criticisms and objections are solely due to ignorance and misconception, and must yield to a personal inspection of the Court House and to an understanding of the urgent needs of the people even for its present facilities. If there be at present any divided opinion upon this work of the Board of Commissioners I unhesitatingly predict that the future will have no divided judgment and that these Commissioners have erected for themselves to their credit and to the pride of their descendents for all future time this building as their monument.

It is not a misplaced compliment to allude in words of praise to the exceeding satisfactory work of the contractors, Gehret and Lambert, nor must we omit a reference to the architects Newman and Harris, and especially to Mr. James Harris who gave so much of personal time and thought to this work, and who honors us and this occasion with his presence. It is a source of gratification that he is no stranger to us, but is one of us by the closest and most sacred ties. His father, an honored citizen, died in our midst. He bears the name and is a member of one of our oldest families. By ties of kinship, he is connected with one of our most brilliant and versatile jurists (I refer to Mr. Petriken.) It is to Mr. Harris' artistic skill in preserving all that was beautiful in the old structure, to his delicate sense of shade and symmetry, that we owe this classic building.

Therefore, President Sparks, on behalf of Jacob Woodring, H. E. Zimmerman and John L. Dunlap, Commissioners of Centre County, I hereby present to the people of Centre County, through yourself, one of our most distinguished citizens and as the representative of our people, this beautiful Temple of Justice, to be used by our people for all its varied purposes and uses throughout all the years to come; and may God add his blassing thereto, and grant that true justice and mercy may be ever administered therein.

It was a pretty compliment to General Beaver that he should take the floor without the formality of an introduction to old home friends. General Beaver's address follows:

GOV. TENER TO APPOINT SUCCESSOR TO ORVIS

Will Name a Judge to Fill Vacancy of 1 Year in this County.

NO OTHER WAY OPEN

Judge Orvis' Term Expires First Monday in January, 1915, and Successor to Full Term Must be Elected in November of that Year.

When the term of Judge Orvis, of Centre County, expires on the first Monday of January, 1915, his successor will be appointed by Governor Tener. The person so appointed will serve until the first Monday of January, 1916. At the November election, in 1915, a judge will be elected to serve for a term of ten years.

Just who will be appointed by Governor Tener is, of course, entirely problematical. Should he name one of his party, a Republican would be appointed. In the event that a Democrat is chosen, Judge Orvis will in all probability be designated to continue in office for the additional year.

The fact that Governor Tener will have the appointing of a judge for this county, to succeed Judge Orvis and to serve for one year, is made known in an opinion handed down by the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania, declaring invalid a recent act of the Legislature extending the period of judges whose terms expire on the first Monday in January of odd numbered years. The Supreme Court ruled that the constitution prohibits extending or shortening the term of a judge by act of the Legislature. The Supreme Court also ruled that the constitution prohibits the election of a judge fourteen months in advance of the expiration of his term. The court holds that a judge must be elected at the November election immediately preceding the beginning of his term.

This somewhat tangled up situation grows out of defects in the phraseology of the recent constitutional amendments and the schedule adopted putting the same into effect. To have the matter straightened out by the Supreme Court a bill was passed by the Legislature extending the terms of such judges one year. It was also suggested that this failing it might be permissible to elect a judge fourteen months in advance of the beginning of his term. The trouble arose over the requirement that judges

The Supreme Court decided that the Governor alone has the power to fill the vacancy which will exist for one year in the case of every judge whose term expires on the first Monday in January, 1915. As explained, the judge so appointed will serve for one year and will be succeeded by the person elected in November, 1915. It is entirely possible that Governor Tener will appoint a Republican to serve the one year in question in Centre County.

OATS AND CORN RUINED

Heavy damage to the oats and corn in the fields in the vicinity of Spring Mills was caused by a terrific storm which swept over that part of the county on Tuesday. Virtually every field of oats and corn covering an area of three miles square was washed out. The oldest residents there pronounced the storm the worst they had ever witnessed. The greatest damage is that to the oats crop, it now being too late for replanting. While field after field of corn was washed out, it is not very late for replanting. The loss is quite heavy to many farmers, some having their second planting of corn completely ruined. The storm seemed to come from the direction of Penns cave and for a time the rain fell in torrents.

Adam Neese, who lives on the old John A. Grenoble farm, about one and a half miles west of Spring Mills, lost two cows which were killed by lightning during the storm. The farm of County Auditor Robert D. Musser, nearby, was badly washed and the corn and oats ruined.

All through Brush valley the storm was the worst ever experienced there. Despite the fact that the country is chiefly level, many fields were gutted by the water and the corn and oats destroyed. The Benjamin Limbert farm was among those experiencing the greatest damage. The loss there was especially heavy in his corn fields. John Zerby's loss is severe, this being his second planting of corn to be destroyed.

HUSTON GOES TO JAIL

Architect Joseph M. Huston, the last of the State Capitol grafters to go unpunished, must finally go to jail. The Supreme Court on Monday denied his application for a new trial and within the next week Huston will join William P. Snyder, former Auditor General, and James M. Shumaker, former Superintendent of Public Grounds and Buildings in the Eastern Penitentiary, at Philadelphia. Huston must serve a sentence, the minimum of which is six months and the maximum two years.

Huston put up the hardest and longest fight of the Capitol grafters to escape going to prison. When the penitentiary doors close upon him next week it will mark the finishing touch to the exposure, conviction and imprisonment of every Capitol grafter alive. Two of the principals in the notorious scandal died before punishment could be meted out, but their death was hastened by worriment attending the exposure of the crime and realization that prison doors would soon open to them. They were John H. Sanderson, the chief grafter contractor, and William L. Mathues, former State Treasurer.

Huston attempted to secure a new trial on the ground that the verdict convicting him in the Dauphin Court was technically defective. When he heard the decision of the Supreme Court Huston was too dazed to speak. He muttered incoherently and passed his fingers through his hair. His wife, who was present at the time, was prostrated.

COMMENCEMENT JUNE 20

Bellefonte High School Graduates Will Receive Diplomas.

The commencement exercises of the Bellefonte High School will be held in the auditorium of the new High School building on the evening of Tuesday, June 20. This was decided at a special meeting of the School Board, held on Tuesday evening, last. The proposed annual Junior Oratorical Contest is postponed until some time next fall. The baccalaureate sermon will be preached on June 18, in the Bellefonte Reformed church, by Rev. Dr. A. M. Schmidt.

It was also decided at the meeting of the School Board that the public schools in Bellefonte shall remain closed for the remainder of the present term. This was prompted by a desire to be on the safe side in protecting the health of the school children. No apprehension is felt from the several cases of scarlet fever and scarlet rash in town, but inasmuch as the schools have been closed for one week and the additional fact that a comparatively few days of the term remain, it was deemed best not to reassemble the children.

Joke on Dr. Sparks.

Since becoming president of State College Dr. E. E. Sparks has been twitted a good bit on his never overlooking an opportunity to get everything in sight for that institution. It has become a common joke among the friends of Dr. Sparks that anything he finds that is not locked and chained, he takes with him to State College. Dr. Sparks always pleads guilty to the charge.

At the Court House dedication, Dr. Sparks made the speech receiving the remodeled building on behalf of the citizens of Centre County. His speech was a gem for good humor and timely comment. As he was leaving the Court House, a friend accosted Dr. Sparks and remarked:

"Well, I understand that you received the Court House."

"Yes," smilingly replied Dr. Sparks, not quite sure what was coming.

"When are you going to take it up to State College?"

Dr. Sparks grinned. What he had in mind, but didn't say, was that it was a good thing for Bellefonte that the Court House was pretty firmly plastered down.

Churches Closed Next Sunday.

Following a meeting yesterday of the Bellefonte Ministerium, the following statement was issued:

"At a special meeting of the Bellefonte Ministerium, held Wednesday morning, May 24, it was unanimously agreed for the safety of the public to close all church services next Sunday, May 28, and that the Board of Health be asked to co-operate with the Ministerium and close all public gatherings, such as the Scenic, dances, etc., until such time as in the estimation of the Board of Health the safety of the public is assured."

Decorate Revolutionary Graves.

Following the very commendable custom of past years, the Bellefonte chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution will next week decorate the graves of all Revolutionary soldiers in and about Bellefonte.

GREAT MOOSE PICNIC AT HECLA PARK, JULY 4

BIG CROWD EXPECTED

Program will Include Athletic and Aquatic Events—Delegations From Lodges in Nearby Towns to Attend First Annual Outing.

A grand, old-fashioned Fourth of July celebration will be held, at Hecla Park, by Bellefonte Lodge, No. 206, Loyal Order of Moose. Elaborate preparations are under way to make the first annual picnic of the lodge a crowning success of a highly successful year's work.

That there will be a tremendous crowd at Hecla Park on this occasion is doubly certain. The big Moose outing and picnic is the only Fourth of July celebration thus far planned in this section. Just as the nucleus of the throng there will be the 500 or more members of the Bellefonte lodge. Added to this will be delegations from Moose lodges from every nearby town in the central part of the State.

The program of amusements and entertainment being prepared will more than please all who go to Hecla Park for the day. There will not only be music and dancing but a program of athletic and aquatic events surpassing anything of the kind attempted in years gone by. Just one of numerous features will be a baseball game in the afternoon between two of the strongest clubs in this section. A magnificent display of fireworks in the evening will mark the close of the big celebration.

Since being organized the Bellefonte Lodge of Moose has enjoyed a remarkable growth in membership. A handsomely furnished clubhouse has been established, in Spring Street, and recently the Undine Hose Company hall was rented for the holding of lodge meetings. On Friday evening, last, the lodge held its first annual banquet in the clubhouse. Despite the heavy flood, which kept many away, especially members from Penns valley, there were present 283 of the 500 members, thus testifying to the interest displayed in the success of the organization. A fine supper was served. Deitrick's orchestra rendered choice music and P. H. Meyer, at the piano, kept things moving with lively airs that were joined in by the large throng of diners. All in all, it was the greatest night in Moosedom since the lodge was organized just about one year ago.

78th. Birthday Anniversary.

May 18, last, marked the seventy-eighth anniversary of the birth of James G. Hayes, of Clintondale, and the occasion was appropriately celebrated. An excellent dinner was prepared by his kind and affectionate wife and daughters and was greatly enjoyed by those present, who included the several members of the family, also A. A. Pletcher, of Howard, and Mrs. Carl T. Noll and son, Thomas, of Pitcairn. Mr. Hayes was married on May 18, 1859, to Miss Rachael McKibbon, of Salona. Five children blessed this union and, happy to relate, all are living. They are Mary, Norman, Hebert, Cora and Rilla. During his entire life Mr. Hayes has resided in Clinton County. By thrift and industry, and with honesty and fair dealing as his guide, Mr. Hayes has prospered and now is the owner of a large and productive farm, known as the Samuel Allison farm, near St. Paul church, along the pike. He also owns a handsome residence in Clintondale, where he now resides.

No Court this Week.

There was no court session this week for jury trials. Judge Orvis last Saturday directed that the jurors be notified not to appear, owing to the fact that the several cases listed for trial had been postponed for one cause or another. On Tuesday and Wednesday the court was in session for the receiving of petitoins, etc. A number of jurors did not receive the notice of the change in program and arrived in town on Monday prepared to remain for the week. They were paid for their expenses and promptly discharged.

Gen. Beaver's Address.

Mr. Chairman, Ladies and Gentlemen:—

My wish is, in the most familiar and informal way possible, to speak of some of the things which are naturally suggested by the occasion which brings us together. Although I have realized in a general way for some time that I have been the oldest in point of service of the members of the bar, it has never occurred to me before that I lead all my brethren in the matter of age, and that of those who follow me in admission to the bar prior to 1875 there remain only my brother Stitzer, admitted in 1864, my brother Fortney in 1869 and my brethren Spangler and Keichline, admitted in 1874. My brethren, the Dales, were admitted in '76, Senator Heinle in '78, brother Ray in '80 and you, Mr. Chairman, in '81. All the other members of the bar belong to a later generation. Indeed it may be said of them that they have come to the bar since I left its active practice, for, as a matter of fact, since 1882 I have had but little in the way of continuous, strenuous, general practice.

I came to Bellefonte on the 6th of September 1856, almost immediately after graduating at College, and entered the law office of Hon. H. N. McAllister as a student. The younger Judge Burnside, who was then the President Judge of the 25th Judicial District, suspended the rules relating to the admission of members of the bar who began their studies prior to the age of 21, so that I was admitted on the 24th of January 1859 and am, therefore, a little more than five years the senior of my brother Stitzer who immediately follows me in point of service, and a few days more than ten years the senior of my brother Fortney.

I make this personal reference, for the reason that it will give you some idea of the standpoint occupied, which enables me to speak from personal knowledge and experience of some of the things which concern us today.

One hundred and eleven years ago on the 13th of February last, Thomas McKean, then the Governor of Pennsylvania, by his signature, gave efficacy to an act previously passed by the General Assembly of the Commonwealth, entitled "An act erecting parts of the counties of Mifflin, Northumberland, Lycoming and Huntingdon into a separate county." The boundaries of the new county are fully described in the first section of this act, and the name which is given to the territory therein contained is Centre County. This name was doubtless given to the new county, because it was generally central, and it was perhaps then known that the geographical center of the state was within its territorial limits. Whether that be so or not, however, it is now well known that the center of our commonwealth is found within its borders. I am not able to say whether or not its exact location has ever been definitely fixed, but it is supposed to be within—say three miles or thereabouts of the Court House.

A practical suggestion may not be out of the way, namely, that the exact point should be ascertained by some competent authority and designated by a granite marker suitably inscribed, which could be erected by the people of the county by voluntary subscriptions, and, in the arrangement of our new state roads, if the pending legislation should become law, they should be so located that one or more of them should lead to and from, and by way of, that particular point. It might be possible to have a junction of two such roads in the immediate neighborhood, so as to make the center of the state a point of some interest and prominence.

By the third section of the act referred to, it was enacted; "That the Judges of the Supreme Court, and the President of the fourth district, of which district the said Centre County is hereby declared to be a part, as well as the associate judges who shall be commissioned in and for the said Centre County, shall have like powers, jurisdictions and authorities within the same, as are warranted to, and exercised by the said judges in other counties of this Commonwealth; and that the Courts of General Quarter Sessions of the Peace, and of the Common Pleas, in and for the said Centre County shall be opened and holden on the Mondays next succeeding the general county courts held in the county of Mifflin in each year, at the house now occupied by James Dunlop, in the town of Bellefonte, in the said Centre County, until a court house shall be erected, as hereinafter directed, and shall then be held at the said court house."

The ninth section of the said act provides: "That Andrew Gregg, William Swanzey and Robert Boggs, of Bald Eagle, be, and they are hereby appointed trustees for the county aforesaid, with full authority for them, or the survivors or survivor of them, to purchase or take and receive, by grant, bargain or otherwise as well all such assurances for the payment of money and grants of land as hath been stipulated for by James Dunlop and James Harris, by their bonds to the Governor of this Commonwealth, as also any moneys, bonds or other property that may hereafter be offered to them, in trust to sell and convey, or otherwise dispose of the same, to the best advantage; and to vest one moiety of the neat proceeds thereof in some productive fund, for the support of an academy or public schools, in the said county; and with the other moiety of the neat proceeds of the land or lots aforesaid, and with other moneys duly assessed, levied and collected within the said Centre County for that purpose, which it is hereby declared it shall be lawful for the Commissioners thereof to do or cause to be done, to build and erect a Court House, prison and other buildings for the safe keeping of the public records of said county, on such part of the public square, laid out in the said town of Bellefonte as to them shall appear most suitable; and the said trustees shall, from time to time, render due and faithful accounts of the expenditures of the same, to the Commissioners and to the auditors of the county, who are hereby authorized to adjust and settle the same."

We have thus given us the names of the citizens through whom, the machinery through which, and the public spirited founders of the town, through whose beneficence at least, a portion of the funds necessary for the erection of the public buildings were provided for the administration of justice and the conduct of the public business of the county.

A court of Quarter Sessions was held in November 1800 before Associate Judges James Potter and John Barber, when, upon motion of Jonathan Walker, Esq., Attorneys Jonathan Walker, Charles Huston, Elias W. Hale, Jonathan Henderson, Robert Allison, Robert F. Stewart, William A. Patterson, John Miles, David Irvine, W. W. Laird and John W. Hunter were duly admitted as attorneys to practice at the bar of the county. These attorneys, so far as is known, were residents of the counties from which the county of Centre had been taken, some of them being well known members of the bars of Mifflin, Huntingdon and Lycoming Counties respectively.

The January Sessions of 1801 were also held by Judge Potter and his associates, none of whom was learned in the law. The first regular session of the court, at which the President Judge of the Fourth District presided, was the April Sessions of 1801, when Judge James Riddle, President Judge of the Fourth Judicial District, resident in Carlisle, appeared on the bench for the first time in the County. A Grand Jury assembled at that time and the regular work of the court proceeded and seems to have been held regularly from that time forward.

Linn, in his History of Centre County, gives some particulars of a rather remarkable civil suit which was brought to the August Term of 1801, and although never tried was settled several years later after repeated continuances, which was that of George McKee vs. Hugh Gallagher, both plaintiff and defendant keeping tavern in Bellefonte, McKee in a store building on the lot now occupied by Dr. Dale as a residence and office, and Gallagher in a long frame house which stood on the lot now occupied by Mrs. Bush. It is said that a wagon loaded with whiskey in barrels was left in front of McKee's tavern but that some mischievous person during the night removed the pinnings or plugs therefrom and none of the whiskey was found there in the morning. It is possible that the animus which gave rise to the lawsuit arose from this transaction, although it did not involve in any form the irregular manner in which the whiskey was disposed of. The case was one of slander, in which it was charged that Gallagher said George McKee stole Samuel Lamb's saddle bags. An action of slander usually gives an opportunity for the exercise of a great variety of legal talents and the number of counsel employed for both plaintiff and defendant called forth the exercise of the talents of the members of the bar who probably made their stopping places with McKee on the one hand and Gallagher on the other. The counsel for McKee are given as Foulke, Reed, J. Dunlop, S. Duncan, Wallace, T. Duncan, McCullogh, Thompson, Miles, McClure, Kidd, Irwin, Allison and Patterson; and for Gallagher there appeared Stewart, Walker, Henderson, Rose, Huston, Hastings, Clark, Hall, Laird, Bonham, Gemmill, Burnside, Boggs, Orbison, Cadwalader, Canan, Smith, Carpenter, H. Dunlop, Dean, Hepburn, Bellas—fourteen for the plaintiff and twenty-two for the defendant. We recognize the well known names of men who played a great part in the administration of justice in all the counties from parts of which Centre County was formed—Mifflin, Huntingdon, Lycoming and Northumberland. It requires but little play of the imagination to picture the depth of feeling manifested by the principals in the hostile camps of McKee on the east side and Gallagher on the west side of Spring street and the ability and loyalty which characterized the embattled hosts around the counsel table and the hilarity which prevailed around the social board of the respective headquarters.

It is probable that the courts were held for several years in the house of James Dunlop, which if not the identical house, was upon the ground now occupied by the residence of the late Jacob Valentine, Esq., formerly owned and occupied by his father, George Valentine, by whom it was purchased from the estate of James Dunlop, John G. Lowry, surviving executor of James Dunlop, making a deed to George Valentine, his heirs and assigns, in trust for his minor son, Jacob D. Valentine.

Whether or not the original Court House, which stood upon the ground now occupied by the building which we re-dedicate today, was set apart by public exercises for the purposes for which it was intended I cannot say. I find no notice of such a public occasion anywhere in Linn's History of Centre County, which gives us the best account of which I have knowledge of the early days of the affairs of the County.

It has been supposed that the Court House originally built by the Commissioners named in the act creating the County was used first in 1805 and that the present building is the direct descendant of the original one, occupying at least in part the ground occupied by it, although possibly no part of the original remains.

In endeavoring to verify the time at which the original Court House was occupied, our Prothonotary, Mr. Kimport, aided me in the examination of the early records of the County, and, in the Continuance Docket for 1806, he discovered that, on the 16th of September 1806, the Court met at the Court House and adjourned to the house of Benjamin Patton, and that on the 3rd of October of the same year the Court again met at the house of Benjamin Patton, as per adjournment. In the Docket of the Court of Quarter Sessions for the same year, it is ascertained that Benjamin Patton was recommended for a tavern license in Bellefonte, from which it appears that the Court was held that year at one of the public houses of the town. It would, therefore, seem as though the Court House was not regularly occupied prior to the November Sessions of the Court in 1806—possibly not until the early part of 1807.

About the time that the younger Judge Burnside came to the bench in 1853, by the appointment of William Bigler, the then Governor of the state, having been subsequently elected in the fall of the same year, the question of enlarging the old or building a new Court House was presented to the Grand Jury by petition of citizens at sundry times. Finally, in 1854, two successive Grand Juries recommended alterations and repairs to the Court House, in pursuance of which the Commissioners of the County undertook, in accordance with the terms of the recommendations of the jury, to alter and repair the Court House. This was done by removing the building, as it then existed, leaving the colonnade in front intact, and adding the present rectangular portion of the main building thereto, thus complying at least in letter with the recommendations of the Grand Jury but in effect building a new Court House.

This was nearly new when I came to the county and remained practically intact, although numerous so-called improvements were, from time to time, made, until our present beautiful, complete and convenient Court House, which we dedicate today, was projected and has been carried to such attractive fruition, through the efforts of our President Judge and our efficient Board of County Commissioners, in pursuance of the well considered and tasteful plans of the accomplished architects, Messrs. Newman & Harris, who have had the supervision of the work in charge.

This brings me to the point at which it is most appropriate to congratulate the people of the County upon the manner in which the repairs to our now complete and beautiful structure have been carried out. All the architects of character and standing who have made a study of our Court House have been uniform in their advice: "Never touch the front of your Court House; it is one of the most beautiful buildings in Pennsylvania; its classic architecture cannot be improved." The architect selected by those who had the oversight of the improvement in hand doubtless was of this opinion.

There was evidently a wave of devotion of classic architecture in this town in the 30's. The old Presbyterian Church, with a Doric colonnade, and the portico or colonnade to the Court House were evidently built about the same time, the Ionic style of architecture being carefully outlined and carried out in the letter. The third of the celebrated orders or architecture, the Corinthian, seems to have found no illustration among our public buildings, and, with the demolition of the Presbyterian Church, which came in 1868, the Doric order has also been eliminated, unless it finds an illustration in the rear portico of the present building.

The first knowledge of a serious intention to add to the facilities of the Court House for the proper accommodation of our public offices and the Courts which came to me was an invitation to attend an informal meeting at the residence of Judge Orvis more than a year ago. The meeting was a representative one, embracing those who are supposed to know the most as to the requirements of the business of the County. The result was the unanimous approval of the plans of the architects, with the suggestion to the Commissioners of the County that they be carried into effect as completely and as early as possible.

It is fair to the Commissioners of the County to say this, inasmuch as they were extremely anxious to discharge the duty which was incumbent upon them as public officers and yet not to go beyond what might be the wishes of the people in regard to what ought to be done in order to meet the requirements of the business of the County, present and prospective. I want to say right here that I assume my full share of the responsibility for the improvements made by the County Commissioners and I intend to stand by them to the last drop.

We have had in Pennsylvania, during the last thirty years, a variety of instructive illustrations of the manner in which the people of the several counties provided for the facilities for the discharge of the business of the public, beginning with the public buildings in Philadelphia which cost over twenty millions of dollars, followed by the Richardson Court House in Allegheny County, costing between four and five millions, the court house in Washington County, costing over half a million, that in the county of Westmoreland at Greensburg, costing over a million of dollars, and that in Luzerne County, at Wilkes-Barre, costing probably between a million and a half and two millions. I am more or less familiar with the details of these various public improvements, particularly with the quarters assigned to the Supreme and Superior Courts in Philadelphia and Pittsburg. I presume that the Court and Consultation Rooms occupied by these Courts in Philadelphia cost actually more than the entire amount expended by our Commissioners in overhauling, enlarging, strengthening and making safe our present comfortable, convenient and wholly appropriate Court House building, and yet in taste, facilities for convenient work for the various county officers and the administration of justice, I much doubt whether there is found anywhere in Pennsylvania a building which more fully and completely meets the requirements of taste, convenience, comfort and satisfaction. I have not seen anywhere in the Commonwealth a room which, for the purposes for which it is intended, in good taste and satisfactory accommodations, will exceed that of our present library and memorial hall in this building, in itself considered, in its furnishings and in its embellishments, as planned and already in part executed.

It is to be hoped that the splendid beginning already made for preserving the features of all the men who have presided in our Courts here will be carried to a successful completion. It is possible that much difficulty will be experienced in securing the portraits of Judges Riddle, Cooper and Walker, who preceded Judge Huston upon the bench of this county. As to all of the others there ought to be no difficulty, and yet these gentlemen were so distinguished in their judicial career as well as such prominent citizens that there ought to be no insurmountable difficulty in securing portraits that would perpetuate their memory. Judge Walker especially, who was the first Judge of the District resident in Bellefonte, left such distinguished children to survive him that through their descendants in some way or other his portrait ought to be secured.

The admirable little souvenir booklet which is I presume being distributed to the citizens of the County generally, not only gives us many accurate and beautiful views of both the exterior and interior of the Court House, but it gives as well certain historical data which are of great value, especially with reference to the president or presiding law judges of the county—rather of the several districts with which the county has been connected since its organization. A slight error, however, has crept into the pages devoted to the Judges, in reference to the official character and term of Hon. John H. Orvis, who is named as President Judge from 1874 to 1883. As a matter of fact, under the provisions of the act of the 9th of April 1874, the office of additional law judge for the 25th judicial district, composed of the counties of Clearfield, Clinton and Centre, was created, and the people of the district authorized to elect such a judge at the following election. Judge Orvis was originally appointed by Gov. Hartranft to fill this position in 1874 and was elected in the same year to serve for ten years. At the extra session of the Legislature in 1883, "the 49th District, composed of the counties of Centre and Huntingdon, was created, and the additional law judge of the 25th judicial district, as constituted under the act of one thousand eight hundred and seventy-four, and now residing in Centre County, was made the President Judge thereof until the expiration of his commission." Judge Orvis, however, did not occupy the place until the expiration of his commission, having resigned before the end of his term. Judge Meyer remained the President Judge of the 25th Judicial District until the 49th was created, when he continued President Judge of the 25th District, then and since composed of the Counties of Clinton, Cameron and Elk.

It appears from the list of judges contained in this souvenir booklet that eighteen who were learned in the law have presided over the courts of Centre County. Until 1851, the judges were appointed by the Governor and held their office during good behaviour. Since that time, under the amendment to the constitution, they have been elected for a fixed period, the constitutional limit being ten years. It, therefore, appears that, although Judge Biddle occupied the bench but four years and Judge Cooper but two, from the organization of the County in 1800 until 1851, but six Judges occupied the bench, and from the Constitutional Amendment until the present, there have been twelve Judges, Judge James T. Hale having occupied the bench but a few months prior to the election in 1851.

A most interesting and inviting field for reminiscence is here opened up before me. Under the provision of the act of the 9th of April 1853, the counties of Centre, Clearfield and Clinton were created a separate judicial district, to be called the 25th, and, in pursuance of its provisions, as already intimated, Hon. James Burnside was appointed the President Judge by Gov. Bigler and was elected at the general election of that year to succeed himself. He was, therefore, the President Judge of the District, when I came to Centre County. I was admitted to the bar under his administration and have a distinct recollection of his urbanity and ability. The older citizens present will doubtless recall the tragic manner of his death. His sister, Mrs. Harvey Mann, was driven by her son Harvey to Judge Burnside's door with a new horse. The Judge was invited to take a drive and entered the buggy but, before his nephew could follow him, his horse started and, turning the corner of High and Spring Streets suddenly, one of the wheels was dished, the Judge was thrown from the buggy violently upon the ground and almost instantly killed. The accident occurred on the evening of the 1st of July. Arrangements had been made for an unusually interesting celebration of the Fourth of July but, in consequence of this tragic event, it was abandoned and the community gave itself up to sincere and unfeigned sorrow for the untimely removal of one of the most prominent and highly esteemed citizens of the community.

Judge Gamble was appointed by Gov. Packer to succeed Judge Burnside and was followed, in the administration of justice in the district, by Hon. Samuel Linn, who was elected at the general election of that year.

I shall not further trespass upon your time by entering upon this field which invites my thought and attention.

From the time of my admission until my appointment upon the bench, I practiced continuously before eight of the Judges who have administered the affairs of our Courts in this County. I had the pleasure of trying but very few cases before Judge Love and have never appeared as an advocate before your able and thoroughly competent President Judge who was a student in my office but from whom I would have none the less gladly received his judgments and decrees as the law of the land.

Seeing around me today the members of this bar, the most of whom have become connected with it since I was transferred from the bar to the bench, I am reminded of those who constituted the bar of Centre County when it first came under my observation. Through those who were then living I came, by tradition, into relations with the original members of the bar, a number of them having been familiar with most of those who settled in Centre County, as its founders and leaders. Hon James MacManus, who was then living, and was and continued to be for many years the acknowledged father of the bar, had come here as a student prior to 1825. He studied law with the older Judge Burnside and, of course, knew personally and well Judge Huston and other older members of the bar. Through him, therefore, rather then through those those who came later and were called from this world earlier, I touched, by tradition at least, those who had gone, who had filled a large place in the community and had left such clear and distinct marks of their professional life and achievements behind them.

At no time in its history had the bar of Centre County a more distinguished group of practitioners than I found here when I came. There were four men, in the very prime of life, who, taken together, constitute one of the most remarkable groups of lawyers I have ever known. Named in the order of their admission to the bar, they were James T. Hale, H. N. McAllister, A. G. Curtin and Samuel Linn. Absolutely and essentially different in their natural endowments and in their intellectual and other acquirements, each had such individual gifts and talents that, as one endeavored to analyze them, it became difficult to determine which were the most distinguished.

To Judge Hale I was personally much attached. He was one of the best all-round natural lawyers I have ever known. He was not a great student but he seemed to grasp by instinct what the law ought to be and, when confronted, as he often was, by those who were more studious and more devoted to precedents, he would turn, with a readiness and apparent preparedness that were most remarkable, and analyze and tear to pieces the precedents with which he was confronted as though he had made a study of them for years, and, with the strength and lucidity of a prepared legal opinion, he would argue to the court what, in his view, the law ought to be, pointing out with remarkable readiness and acuteness the points in which the cited precedents differed from the case in hand. Judge Hale was elected to Congress in 1858 and did not end his congressional career until after the war closed. He came home for the trial of a cause, in which he was on the opposite side from that in which our firm was interested. I sat on the one side of our counsel table next to that which he occupied at theirs. We conversed frequently during the trial and he confided in me to some extent the plans which he had outlined for his guidance in his future life. He tried the case with great readiness and spirit and apparent enjoyment, went out from it to the residence

Any remedy that benefits digestion strengthens the nerves.

The nerve centers require nutrition.

Rampant Democracy.

It may be well worth the while of thoughtful men, no matter what their position in life, to inquire whether this country is not being seriously injured rather than bettered by the spirit of rampant democracy which appears to have possessed the public mind. When James Bryce in 1888, at work on The American Commonwealth, came to consider the strength of American democracy, he declared the first merit that flowed from the rule of public opinion as it obtains under our Constitution to be "stability." If there is to be contentment among the people, that prosperity which is the goal of every honest man, and a state of society in which there is an approximation of equality under the law, there must be stability of governmental condition.

This is axiomatic. It was to promote this stability and assure equality that our system of government was established by the fathers. So well did they do their work and so admirably was their plan conceived that today, though we are in the habit of speaking of the United States as a young nation, ours is the oldest on earth, considered as an unmodified entity and as to the number of years it has endured without change of form. Throughout our history government by the people, as originally modeled, through their chosen representatives, has been sufficient for every need and to meet every crisis. By means of the checks and balances intended to prevent hasty legislation we have as a people averted the perils of gusts of passion and unmature deliberation. Laterly, however, as the result of agitation which had its provocation in business abuses and in that evolution in commercial methods which is represented in so-called trusts, there has developed popular impatience and unrest that find expression in demands for the initiative, referendum and recall. These mean direct legislation by the people and removal of public officials arbitrarily by the people—both of which propositions are catchy and consequently have an immense vogue. People unfortunately are prone to impute to them advantages only without giving thought to their disadvantages and dangers. If we had had the initiative in the late seventies or early eighties this country would have adopted greenbackism. If there had been such a power in the people directly in the early nineties we should have had free silver. These are examples of the possibilities of the initiative, not to mention Oregon's recent exploit, with the same wonderful weapon, in voting to abolish trial by jury—through a misapprehension!—a blunder from which the state had to be saved by its Legislature.

After all, the people are able to get what they really want in due season from their elected representatives. They have succeeded in doing so through all the years of our remarkable progress as a nation, and they will continue to do so after the restless radicalism which is now so much in evidence has given way to calmer and saner judgments.—Pittsburg Gazette-Times.

Watch Your Kidneys.

Their action controls your health. Read what Foley Kidney Pills have done for your neighbor. Mrs. A. Smith, 1521 Scott St., Williamsport, Pa., says: "Some time ago I was troubled with a very lame back and felt very miserable and all tired out. Foley Kidney Pills were recommended to me for my trouble and I took them. After a short time my back felt much better and now after using Foley Kidney Pills for six weeks I am fully cured. My kidneys act naturally and I gladly recommend Foley Kidney Pills to all who have kidney trouble." Sold by C. M. Parrish, Bellefonte, Pa.

YOUNG MOTHER'S DEATH

Coming as a shock to a wide circle of admiring friends was the news received in Bellefonte on Sunday, last, of the death that afternoon of Mrs. Edward L. Walker, at East Orange, N. J. The deceased, before her marriage, was Miss Ida Orris, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Samuel H. Orris, of Milesburg, and for a number of years was a stenographer in the law office of the late Judge A. O. Furst and after that in the office of Col. W. Fred Reynolds. Her marriage occurred on October 16, 1907, and with her husband she made her home at East Orange, one of the pretty residential spots in New Jersey. It was an ideally happy home and the hopes of the young couple were heightened with the expected arrival of an heir. Just when it was believed that their hopes were to be realized death intervened, claiming both the young mother and child, a son christened Edward Francis Walker. Funeral services were held in Bellefonte yesterday from the residence of Mrs. Walker's sister, Mrs. E. E. Davis, on East Linn Street. Interment was made at Curtin cemetery, the little child being laid away with the mother.

Mrs. Walker was born at Milesburg, where she made her home until her marriage. She was a young woman with the highest of ideals, striving to not only lead a true Christian life but to radiate sunshine and happiness among those with whom she came into contact. Endowed with a genial happy disposition, she was popular with a host of friends and by all her death is deeply mourned.

Surviving Mrs. Walker are a husband and the following brothers and sisters: George P., of Bellwood; Mrs. James Campbell, of Tyrone; Mrs. E. E. Davis, of Bellefonte, and Elizabeth and Madge at home.

Mrs. Mary Hafer Haagen Dead.

Death, on Sunday morning, last, closed the young and beautiful life of Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Hafer Haagen, at her late home at Tyrone. Stricken down in the prime of young womanhood, the death of Mrs. Haagen, who was at one time a resident of Bellefonte, caused pronounced sorrow among a host of friends here. Making her death all the more sad is the fact that she leaves behind two motherless little children. Deceased was a daughter of Dr. A. W. Hafer, of Bellefonte, and was born November 23, 1876, in Clearfield County. On December 8, 1897, she was married, at Pleasant Gap, to Henry L. Haagen, of Tyrone. For a time she and her husband resided at Hollidaysburg, more recently living at the Arlington Hotel, at Tyrone. During the last four months Mrs. Haagen had been in failing health. At times she seemed to respond to medical treatment, but somehow she never was able to fully regain her strength. Her death was caused by valvular heart trouble. Surviving are her father and husband and two children, Richard H. and Philip D. A brother, Talmage Hafer and the following sisters also survive: Dr. Laura Hafer Hamilton, and Miss Alpha G. Hafer, of New Haven, Conn., and Miss Jane Hafer, of Bellefonte. Deceased was an active and consistent member of the Methodist Episcopal church and the funeral services, which were held at Tyrone on Tuesday morning, were conducted by Rev. W. W. Hartman, pastor of the Tyrone First Methodist Episcopal church. Interment was made in the Grand View cemetery, at Tyrone.

Death of Harris Sourbeck.

As was noted in the Bellefonte edition of last week's issue of "The Republican" Harris Sourbeck, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. John D. Sourbeck, died at the home of his parents, in Bellefonte, on Thursday morning, about 10 o'clock. Deceased was aged 23 years and for the last three years had been an invalid. Due possibly to nervous exhaustion after being out on a hunting trip, the young man became ill about three years ago. The lower part of the body and both legs became paralyzed. Everything known to medical science was employed to restore his health but his condition gradually became worse. Several months ago he was removed to the Orthopedic hospital, in Philadelphia, and later to Brooklyn. Specialists, who had thoroughly investigated his condition, advised the young man's parents that his case was hopeless and on Wednesday morning he was brought home. His death followed about twenty-four hours after his arrival here. Funeral services was held on Saturday. Surviving are the young man's parents, two brothers, Fred, of Latrobe, and John, of Bellefonte, and also one sister, Mrs. Herbert Bellringer, of Brooklyn.

STORM'S HEAVY DAMAGE

Aggravated supposedly by a cloudburst or water-spout, last Friday's rain and wind storm caused damage amounting to thousands of dollars along Logan branch, near Bellefonte. Several wagon bridges and railroad trestles were swept away or partially wrecked, fields and gardens were overflowed and crops ruined and the Bellefonte Fish Hatchery and a number of homes and outbuildings sadly damaged. The storm was freakish in character, lasting but a short time and without warning sweeping down upon residents along Logan branch. That ordinarily placid stream quickly became a raging torrent, the water rising eight or nine feet in an incredibly short time.

So violent was the force of the water that virtually every wagon bridge between Bellefonte and Pleasant Gap was washed away. The Nittany Valley Railroad trestle, at the Nittany furnace, was undermined and rendered useless for the time being. At several points the road bed of the Lewisburg and Montandon railroad was washed out, suspending all traffic until wrecking crews could be rushed to the scene and the damage repaired.

While countless homes along the Axe Mann pike were flooded, that of Isaac Miller, at the toll gate, suffered most from the fury of the storm. Before the occupants of the house could appreciate the danger, the water rushed upon them, flooding the cellar and also the first floor to a depth of five feet or more. Mrs. Miller, an invalid, was carried to the second floor until she could later be removed to the home of A. V. Miller, in Bellefonte. The horses in the Miller barn were rescued when the water was up to their shoulders.

For a distance of several miles along Logan branch the scene was one of desolation. Fences were either swept away or flattened down by the flood. The water, mixed with earth from the fields, spread a coat of dirty, yellow mud not only along the banks of the stream but onto the road at many places. Scores of homes were rendered centers of misery and distress, the muddy water sweeping into cellars and first floors and leaving behind a yellow, sticky sediment and debris of all kinds and description. For several days many families were compelled to devote their entire time to cleaning up and an unbroken stream of carpets, rugs, etc., hanging out to dry told the extent of the flooding of homes.

The Bellefonte Fish Hatchery suffered heavily, thousands of trout of all ages being swept from the ponds and carried down stream. The water washed away one end of the foundation of one of the two main hatchery buildings and overflowed into every pond about the place. Some fish were recovered, having been left behind in pools in the fields as the flood subsided and the water receded. Buckets, dishpans and all manner of receptacles were used in rescuing the fish and returning them to the ponds.

The greatest flood damage in Bellefonte was that at the Yeager Swing Factory. The flood gates in the dam there were not raised in time and the water after backing up forced an opening alongside the factory and then swept into the road. The side of the road at that point was torn away for a distance of about thirty feet and the walls of the bridge over the race washed out, dropping the superstructure several feet. A large quantity of finished wood, just ready to be put together as swings, was completely ruined by the water.

The rapid rise of the streams through Bellefonte together with the large quantity of debris, logs, and now and then some piece of furniture or other household articles rushing by in the muddy water, foretold the extent of the damage along Logan branch. Hundreds of persons lined the streams and watched the flood until dark, when it was observed that the water was falling.

There were numerous novel incidents connected with the flood. D. F. Lauck, of State College, was out in his automobile when the rain came up. He hurriedly run his car into a shed at the Dan. Shuey place, along the pike. A short time later the water swept through the shed and carried the automoble out and it was only with difficulty that the car was kept from being washed down the creek. Jack Mitchell, of near Lemont, was driving toward Bellefonte when the flood came upon him, near Axe Mann, and almost before he knew it the water was up about the horse's shoulders. Lightning played a peculiar prank at the home of G. C. Lykens, on Curtin Street, Bellefonte. Mrs. Lykens noticed a spark follow an electric light wire in the room where she happened to be standing and the next instant the electric light globe dropped to the floor with a crash. On examination it developed that the lightning had burned off the wire an inch or so from the globe.

At Spring Mills lightning struck and splintered a large tree which stood in front of the William M. Allison home.

Nearby the Yeager Swing Factory a trout, measuring upward of 25 inches, was washed ashore, where it was captured by Jerome Hoffman, who placed it in the big spring.

For the first time in years the streams in Bellefonte were so swollen that the water overflowed into the big spring.

Gangrene finally developed and resulted in his death at the time stated. Funeral services were held at this place today (Thursday,) from the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Lucas.

James Flick, the oldest resident of Union township, died on Saturday night, about 8.20 o'clock, at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Hillary Consel. Death was due to diseases incident to advanced age. Mr. Flick was 83 years old on Christmas day, 1910. His wife preceded him to the grave nine years age. He was a loving husband and kind and affectionate father and lived a devout, Christian life. His death is greatly mourned by all who knew him. Surviving are the following daughters and sons: Mrs Harry Giest, Mrs. Hillary Consel, Robert and George Flick, all of Union township, also by 26 grand-children and 12 great-grand-children. Funeral services were held from the Union church, Bush Hollow, on Tuesday morning, at 10 o'clock, conducted by Rev. Mr. Zeigler, of Snow Shoe Intersection, assisted by Rev. Mr. Kelley, of this place. Interment was made in the Bush Hollow cemetery.

Riley Pratt, after a lingering illness, passed peacefully away at his late home here on Friday afternoon, last, at 4 o'clock. His death came after an extended illness. Mr. Pratt was born at Sheffield, Mass., in the Berkshire hills, August 30, 1837. He removed to Litchfield, Conn., with his parents and received his education in the Litchfield Academy. In 1856 he came to Lewistown, Pa., and engaged with his brother, Henry, in the wholesale notion business, traveling with a wagon over Blair, Mifflin, Juniata, Huntingdon, Centre and Clearfield counties. In 1872 he removed to Philadelphia and traveled for the firm of Jones, Hoar & Co., now Shipley, Hetic & Co., remaining with them for 36 years, when ill health compelled him to give up life on the road. In 1859 he was married in Tyrone to Miss Francis L. Boyer, who died about one year ago. To this union were born thirteen children, six of whom survive. From Philadelphia the family removed to Tyrone and after a residence there of about five years, made this place their home. This was 29 years ago and the family have resided here ever since. Mr. Pratt was the oldest Past Grand Master of the Lewistown lodge Free & Accepted Masons and the oldest Knight Templar of the Lewistown commandery. He was a charter member of the Tyrone lodge of Elks and a charter member of Lumen lodge, No. 639, I. O. O. F., of this place. In the death of Mr. Pratt our village loses one of its foremost citizens. He wasa man in whom the entire community had implicit confidence and faith. He had been ill for a number of years, but despite his affliction he always wore a smile and never complained. His fortitude was often the subject of comment among his friends, for each of whom he always had a glad word down to the very last. For a number of years Mr. Pratt was a squire here and also secretary and treasurer of the Unionville Cemetery Association. The large attendance at his funeral attested to his wide acquaintance and the high esteem in which he was held by all. Moshannon commandery, enroute to the conclave at Williamsport, stopped their special train here to view the remains. The Lewistown lodge of Masons, the Tyrone Elks and a large number of Odd Fellows attended the funeral, which was held on Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock, the services being conducted by Rev. Mr. Bergen, of the Petersburg Presbyterian church. Interment was made in the upper cemetery. Mr. Pratt is survived by the following children: Howard R., of Baltimore; Frank W., of Ambridge, Pa.,; David R., of Tyrone; James A., of Norristown, and Seth B. and Bessie L., at home.

The Beech Creek baseball club on Saturday defeated the New York Central team, of Avis, 11—7. Beech Creek's heavy hitting was too much for the boys from Avis. On the same day the Beech Creek juniors defeated the Hayes Run juniors. 14—4.

There was quite a little stir when a 3-year-old daughter of Elliott Gardner, of Beech Creek, innocently strayed away from her parents and apparently unnoticed by all wandered to Blanchard, where she was eventually found near the Disciple church. For one so young the child had traveled quite a distance before being discovered and returned to her anxious parents.

PENNSYLVANIA'S NEW PUBLIC SCHOOL CODE
WHAT IT IS AND HOW THE LAW APPLIES

The Legislature having passed the School Code, over which there has been so much discussion in the last three years, interest naturally centers upon the question of how it will work out in its application throughout the State. By actual experience in conducting the public schools under the provisions of the Code it is expected that the next two years will reveal where the new law is defective and how it may be remedied by the Legislature of 1913. For the information of everybody interested in the welfare of our schools, we publish the following resume of the Code:

The School Code Commission and the legislators have been working on the proposed bill for over three years. While the measure is not deemed perfect, it is considered a long step in advance of the laws under which the schools of the Legislatures are expected to correct defects.

The code divides the state into four classes of districts, placing Pittsburg and Philadelphia in the same division. While the form of government proposed by the code is quite similar to the system now in use in Philadelphia, its introduction into Pittsburg will revolutionize the school affairs of that city. Now Pittsburg and the North Side have separate boards of school controllers and ward boards. They are to be wiped out and 15 directors, to be appointed by the judges, are to administer the schools of the greater city.

The division of the state into school districts is made as follows:

First class—Districts having a population of 500,000 or more. In October, 1911, the Common Pleas judges of Allegheny and Philadelphia counties will appoint 15 directors, five to serve for two years, five for four years and five for six years, and in October of every second year thereafter shall appoint five members of six year terms. The terms will begin on the second Monday of November.

Second class—Districts having a population of 30,000 or more and less than 50,000. At the election held in November, 1911, nine directors are to be elected at large, three for two years, three for four years and three for six years. Biennially thereafter three directors are to be elected at large for six-year terms. The terms begin on the first Monday of December.

Third class—District having a population of 5,000, or more and less than 30,000. At the election held in November, 1911, there are to be seven directors elected at large, two for two years, two for four years and three for six years. At each of the two following municipal elections, two directors are to be elected and at the third election three are to be elected and thereafter two directors are to be elected at each of the two succeeding muncipal elections and three at each third muncipal election for six-year terms. The terms will begin on the first Monday of December.

Fourth class—Districts having a population of less than 5,000. At the election held in November, 1911, five directors are to be elected at large, two for two years, two for four years and one for six years. Thereafter, at each of the first two municipal elections, two directors are to be elected, at the third municipal election one director is to be chosen and thereafter two directors will be elected at each of the two succeeding municipal election and one at each third municipal election, all to be elected at large and for terms of six years. The terms will begin on the first Monday of December.

Independent district—A majority of the taxable inhabitants of any contiguous territory in any school districts may present a petition to the Common Pleas Court, asking that the territory be established as an independent district. The court may make the decree. Where the territory is to be taken from two or more districts, the petition must be signed by a majority of all of the taxable inhabitants of the part of each school district which is to be taken. The court appoints the school boards, naming the number such district would have if it came under one of the four classifications. In November of each year, the court will appoint the proper number of directors for six-year terms. The terms begin on the first Monday of December. There are doubts about the constitutionaily of the forming of these independent districts.

Any citizen having a good moral character, being 21 years of age or upward and having been a resident of the district for at least one year prior to the date of his appointment or election, shall be eligible to the office of school director. The code declares the following to be ineligible.

Mayor, burgess, county commissioner, district attorney, city, borough or township treasurer, road supervisor, tax collector, comptroller, auditor, or constable. Any person who has held an office of trust under the United States, state, county, borough or township and has been removed for malfeasance is ineligible.

All school directors, comptroller or members of boards or educators, who are now holding office in any school district, shall continue to act until the directors provided by the code qualify and organize. In first class districts this will be on the second Monday of November, 1911, and in second, third and fourth class districts, the first Monday of June, 1911, are extended until the first Monday of December, 1911.

From the date of the approval of this act until the time the directors provided for by the code organize, no school teacher can be elected for a term extending beyond the close of the school term of 1912. After the approval of the act it will be unlawful for the board of education, board of school controllers or board of school directors in any school district, sub-school directors or ward school district to make any change in text books, to adopt additional text books or to contract for any new school site or new school building, if the school district, sub-school district or ward school district is included in, or forms a part only, of any school district established by this act.

In first class districts the schools are to be managed by the Board of Public Education. Each ward in Pittsburg and Philadelphia is to elect seven school visitors at the election in November, 1911, four for two years and three for four years. At the municipal election thereafter four and three visitors shall be alternately elected for four years. Their terms begin on the first Monday of January. All ward directors now in office in first class districts are to serve out their terms as school visitors. The visitors elect a president and secretary. The secretary may receive a salary not to exceed $25 a year. At least once every three months the visitors are to visit the schools and make recommendations to the Board of Public Education. The visitors are permitted to elect the janitors for the grammar and elementary schools. No janitors now employed are to be displaced except for cause.

The Board of Public Education organizes by the election of a president and vice president from its membership. The secretary must not be a member. His compensation is fixed by the board. The city controller is annually elected school controller at a salary of $4,000 a year. The city treasurer is elected school treasurer and the board fixes his compensation. The receiver of taxes, city treasurer or other authority, authorized by the bill to collect or receive the school taxes in first class districts, must furnish a bond required by the school board, to be paid by the school district. If they neglect or refuse to furnish the bond, the directors may elect any other proper person as receiver of taxes or school treasurer.

For the collection of the tax, the receiver or treasurer is to receive such compensation as the board deems proper. The school district must also furnish the necessary stationary and books the school board may decide necessary to assist the receiver of taxes. The city solicitor and all other employes are selected and their salaries fixed by the board.

Medical inspection of the pupils of the public schools is made compulsory in first and second-class districts. In first-class districts, where the department of health is providing the inspection, it is permitted to continue and appoint such number of inspectors, with such salaries as shall be satisfactory to the board of public education. When requested the inspection is to be made in the presence of the parent or guardian of the pupil.

In third-class districts the question of whether or not there is to be medical inspection is to be decided by a majority vote of the members of the school board before the first day of August. In fourth-class districts, if inspection is not wanted, the board must so notify the state commissioner of health before July 1. In third and fourth-class districts the parent or guardian can be present at the inspection.

In first-class districts the board selects a superintendent of schools on the first Monday of January. The term can be made for one year or for four years. In Pittsburg, Superintendents Samuel Andrews and John Morrow will serve until the end of their terms as assistant superintendents over the districts in which they now have supervision.

In January, 1912, a district superintendent for first-class districts shall also be elected. The board fixes the compensation of the district superintendent and of the assistant elected in January.

The tax levy in first-class districts is fixed at not less than five nor more than six mills, except in Pittsburg, where the bonded indebtedness of the sub districts is to be assumed, the limit is to be seven mills until "such assumed bonded indebtedness is paid." In first class districts the city assessment is to be used in levying taxes. All districts have the power to issue bonds for certain purposes and provision is made for the establishment of sinking funds.

In second-class districts the levy must not exceed 20 mills and an occupation tax of at least $1 is assessed. The tax must be levied in April or May and the city assessment is taken.

In third and fourth-class districts the levy is limited to 25 mills and an occupation tax of at least $1 is assessed. The levy must be made in April or May and the county assessment is used.

Second, third and fourth-class districts organize this year on the first Monday of December, but in the future their regular organization will come on the first Monday of July. They elect a secretary and treasurer in December to serve until July, and then the elections will be annually. Each board selects a president and vice president from its membership. In second-class districts the secretary and treasurer shall not be members, but they may be members of the board in third and fourth classes.

The boards in each district have full power and control over the schools. The bill makes strict provisions for the management, the purchasing of grounds, books and supplies and the erections of buildings. One of the good features of the code is the provision for the auditing of the accounts. In first-class districts the controller has all of the powers of the city controller and is given sufficient assistance to thoroughly safeguard the expenditures. In second and third-class districts there are two auditors appointed by the courts and in fourth-class districts the borough or township auditor does the work. Provision is also made for the auditing of the accounts of the county and district institutes and the school directors' association. The auditors have full power to summon persons and papers. At present, in most of the districts, the people have little knowledge concerning the expenditure of their money.

The Code creates a state board of education, to consist of six persons to be appointed by the governor, with the state superintendent of public instruction as a member ex-officio. The governor's first appointees are to serve for one, two, three, four, five and six years and their successors for six-year terms. Three must be successful educators of high standing in the state. The powers of the board are defined as follows:

To recommend legislation to make the schools more efficient; to equalize, through special appropriations, the educational advantages of the different parts of the state, to inspect and require reports from the educational work in schools and institutions, wholly or partly supported by the state, which are not supervised by the public school authorities; to enconrage and promote agricultural education, manual training, domestic science and such other vocational and practical education as the needs of the state require; to prescribe rules and regulations for the sanitary equipment and inspection of school buildings and such other action as may be deemed necessary to promote the physical and moral welfare of the children.

Another progressive step taken by the Code is in the establishment of a state school fund. Eighty per cent of the net receipts and water rights belonging to the state, all real estate owned by the commonwealth which is not used for state or public purposes, all escheated estates and all other property or money which shall in any way accrue to the fund is to be known as the "State School Fund of Pennsylvania." The management of the fund is to be under the control of the State Board of Education, and all money is to be safely invested and the income only can be expended. So much of the income as the board deems wise is to be spent in equalizing the educational advantages of the different parts of the state, to promote education in the conservation of natural resources in forestry, agricultural and other industrial pursuits in the public schools.

The Code fixes the length of the school term as follows: In first and second class districts, at least nine months; third class, eight months, and fourth class, seven months.

The Code provides for the election of county, district and assistant superintendents of schools. The first election of county superintendents by the school directors will come on the first Monday of May, 1914. The person then chosen will serve from the first Monday of June, 1914, until the first Monday of May, 1918. Beginning in 1918, the directors will meet on second Tuesday of April of each fourth year to elect a superintendent. The minimum salary of county superintendents is $1,500, and the maximum $2,000, but the directors may vote a larger sum. The salary provision is not operative until the first Monday of June, 1914. Assistant county superintendents are distributed according to the number of schools. A county having more than 200 and not over 400 schools will have one assistant. The minimum salary is $1,200 a year.

First and second class districts shall elect superintendents, and third class districts may elect. Where there are no district superintendents now, second and third class districts can elect men to serve until 1914, these districts elect superintendents to serve until the first Monday of May, 1918. On the second Tuesday of April, 1918, and every four years thereafter, superintendents will be elected. The directors of the district elect and fix the compensation.

In first class districts the board elects superintendents of buildings and supplies and fixes their salaries. In these districts an eligible list of teachers is also maintained.

The Code gives the State Board of Education authority to purchase the normal schools of the state. Each Legislature, beginning with the present, is to appropriate not less than $200,000 until all the normals, which are offered on terms acceptable to the board, have been bought. There are 13 normals in the state. The board can select the schools whose purchase it deems most advantageous, in case it finds that the funds are insufficient to take over all of the schools. The governor must pass on all agreements before they are binding. After the purchase the institution will be managed by the state through a board of nine trustees, residents of the normal school district, to be appointed by the State Board of Education.

of his cousin, Dr. E. W. Hale, his family not having returned home from Washington, and was carried out of it to his grave. In social temperament, in his family relations, in his professional life, in the position which he occupied in the community, in his willingness to serve the community in which he lived and in his desire to be all that he could in the way of helpfulness and uplift to his fellow men—in all that makes an ideal, all-round man, I do not think I have ever known his equal. He was not only a great lawyer, but was a business man who, in his relations with the gentlemen who composed the firm of Morgan, Hale & Co., did more than any other citizen of this region, by the construction of the Tyrone & Clearfield Railroad, to open up and develop the great coal and lumber interests of the trans-Allegheny region which for fifty years and more have added so much to the wealth of Centre and Clearfield Counties, established many private fortunes and added so much to the development of the entire region reached and helped by this great improvement. Making due allowance for my boyish enthusiasm, considering the fact that Judge Hale began his public career, or at least was elected as a member of Congress before I came to the bar, that I was absent from home for nearly four years, during which time I saw him but once or twice, considering also that my relations with him were no more close than those of the ordinary neighbor and friend, I do not think my estimate of his character and professional attainments is in any sense overdrawn, or that my estimate of his worth and personal qualities is, in any sense, over-stated.

Judge Linn was an entirely different type of man. He had once been in partnership with Judge Hale and had come into close relations with Judge Huston. Indeed I think he had rendered some assistance to Judge Huston, as an amanuensis, in the preparation of his work on Land Titles in Pennsylvania. His monumental work—"An Analytical Index of Parallel Reference to the Cases Adjudged in the several Courts of Pennsylvania" was not published until the year afler I came to Bellefonte, but, of course, the work upon it had been done and that, of course, gave him a knowledge of case law in Pennsylvania which I have never seen paralleled in any other person. In the trial of a case, when a new point would arise, it was not unusual to find him, on the spur of the moment, giving volume and page of the authorities, as well as the name of the case, which would bear upon the question, in a way that was practically exhaustive. Judge Linn went upon the bench before I came to the bar and my acquaintance with his legal attainments and acumen as a trial lawyer was gained after his career upon the bench had ended. You would not call him an orator, and yet he was one of the most persuasive men with a Jury you are likely to meet. His illustrations were homely often, but just the kind that would appeal to a jury. Instances would be interesting, but time forbids their use.

Mr. McAllister was unlike either of these men. He was a mixture of the two. He was thoroughly grounded in the principles of the common law, and yet was such a thorough student that his knowledge of the cases, when he had the opportunity to prepare in advance, was practically exhaustive. Judge Woodward, whom he regarded as one of the best Common Pleas Judges before whom he had ever tried a case, said in the Constitutional Convention that he prepared a case better than any lawyer he ever knew. His preparation consisted not only of a knowledge of all that was involved in the case, so far as his side of it was concerned, but also a thorough investigation of the strong points in his opponent's case, so that he came to the trial of a cause with quite as careful preparation for meeting the case of his opponent as of presenting his own.

Gov. Curtin was different from them all. When I came to Bellefonte, he was the Secretary of the Commonwealth of Gov. Pollock, was home but little, except during term time, and sometimes a little in advance for preparation, but he depended more upon inspiration than preparation. He was Judge Hale's equal in geniality and he was Judge Linn's superior, if possible, in an overwhelming sense of the ludicrous and ridiculous, which sometimes carried him, even in the trial of a cause, to the point where, when he could take a serious view of his client's case, he could often laugh that of the opposite side out court. As an orator, he was the superior of all of them and reached the sensibilities as well as the risibilities of the jury in such a way as to often carry them with him, even when the facts and the law were against him. It has often occurred to me that, if the great qualities of these four men could have been combined and divided by four, the product would have been four of the most remarkable average men of any age, in all those elements of moral, mental, social and psychical force which go to make up the complete man.

There were other members of the bar, when I came here, deserving mention. James H. Rankin was District Attorney. Robert C. Durham, who succeeded him in that office, was prominent and had striking characteristics. Edmund Blanchard was the partner of Gov. Curtin and William P. Wilson the partner of Judge Linn. David C. Boal was one of the most brilliant men at the bar. Ira C. Mitchell, although a late comer, had made good in a remarkable degree and probably tried as many cases as any single individual at the bar. Few lawyers outside the County came here for the trial of causes, our own bar being sufficiently diversified, as well as able, to handle anything which might come before the courts for trial.

The next generation of lawyers with whom I came into more direct and immediate relations, had some very remarkable men in it, and it would be a pleasure to speak of many who have gone. Judge Orvis, who came here after I did, was one of the most remarkable lawyers I have ever known. Not only his employments but his enjoyments to a large extent grew out of his experiences at the bar. He enjoyed nothing more than to try over again, in description and reminiscence, the case which he regarded as remarkable. Judge Hoy was a student in the same office with me, and we were to a very large extent each other's preceptors, Mr. McAllister being so immersed in his practice in several counties and in other things that he was unable to give any time whatever to his students. Judge Hoy was a most careful, painstaking, studious lawyer and was thoroughly grounded in the principles of the law. Judge Furst, who came a little later, was acute, discriminating, investigating and assiduous and distinguished between the nice differences in the facts of a case which often led to a clear discrimination in the law. He was a good trial lawyer and a careful Judge.

The names of many others come to memory, but time forbids my mentioning all who have gone before us who deserve mention. I do not attempt to speak of the living, first, because of a lack of sufficient knowledge to do so in any proper way and, secondly, because the time forbids.

Having confessed to the crime of old age, which is pressed upon me only by the arithmetic of the years, the right to be garrulous and gossipy naturally comes with it, and I should make that claim today but for the fact that I have already trespassed upon your patience beyond proper limits I understand others are present who are to make remarks and I have already exceeded the limit which age allows.

Of late years, we have remarked with increasing emphasis, upon the sudden taking of the members of our bar, but it seems to me, in a general review of the past, that this has always been so. Few indeed of the members of our bar from the beginning have reached old age. We are apt to think in Bellefonte that a man who has reached the maturity of a useful life dies before his time, if he is less than eighty years of age. Measured by this standard, few of the members of our bar have reached it. Possibly Judge Huston did. Gov. Curtin came within—say six months of doing so. James MacManus and James H. Rankin were fairly along in years when called hence. William W. Potter and John Blanchard, who seem to us to have been old men because they were of the olden time, both of whom died when representing this district in Congress, were comparatively young when called hence, the former under fifty and the latter under sixty years of age. James M. Petrikin, a Representative in the House at Harrisburg, also died young, being about thirty-seven years of age. He was of such brilliant parts that he ranks as one of the mature men of his generation. So it has been through all the years.

Of those who came to the bar before I did, Linn, Boal, Wilson, Edmund Blanchard, Bush, Hoy, Stover, Kealch, Charles H. Hale have all gone what seems new to be long ago, and of those who came after, Alexander, E. M. Blanchard, Coburn, Shugert, Furst, the Grays—Delaun, Durbin and William—, Orvis, the Yocums—George and Seth—John Mitchell, John Mills Hale, Love, Williams, Lytle, John Blair Linn, Keller, Bower, Reber, Reeder, Hastings, Gephart and John M. Dale have fallen around us like trees uprooted in the storm.

Some of the older of us remain, we cannot but believe for a purpose, but to the younger men of the bar its future is committed. I am not a pessimist, I am not inclined to believe that the old days are better than these. The law is, as it has always been, a jealous mistress. If, therefore, the hints which I have given of the character and capacity of the older bar to convey to your minds, my brethren, an idea of what the bar ought to be, the same intense devotion which marked the character of the men of whom I have spoken must be manifested in your devotion to your profession and your single heartedness in the effort to respond in the highest degree to the call of duty which beckons you forward.

May these simple and beautiful surroundings which we this day dedicate to the sacred cause of justice witness the efforts on your part, which will be equal to those of any who have preceded you, to secure from court and jury the results which shall be, in the highest degree, just and equitable between man and man, and between the Commonweath and those who shall be charged with a violation of her criminal code.

WHEN HER BACK ACHES

Bellefonte women know how the aches and pains that come when the kidneys fail make life a burden. Backache, hip pains, headaches, dizzy spells, distressing urinary troubles, all tell of sick kidneys and warn you of the stealthy approach of diabetes, dropsy and Bright's disease. Doan's Kidney Pills permanently cure all these disorders. Here's proof of it in a Bellefonte woman's words:

Mrs. L. Ingram, 382 E. Bishop St., Bellefonte, Pa., says, "Doan's Kidney Pills have done a world of good and I feel that I cannot speak too highly of them. I suffered intensely from backache and my kidneys gave me a great deal of annoyance. Nothing helped me until I procured Doan's Kidney Pills at Green's Pharmacy Co. In return for the improvement they made I publicly recommended them in October, 1907 and at this time I can say that I have had no further trouble from my kidneys, You are at liberty to use my name as one who recommends Doan's Kidney Pills from personal experience."

Got His Receipt.

He had run up a small bill at the village store and went to pay it, first asking for a receipt. The proprietor grumbled and complained it was too small to give a receipt for. It would do just as well, he said, to cross the account off and so drew a diagonal pencil line across the book.

"Does that settle it?" asked the customer.

"Sure."

"An' ye'll niver be askin' for it again?"

"Certainly not."

"Faith, thin," said the other coolly, "an' I'll kape my money in me pocket."

"But I can rub that out," said the storekeeper.

"I thought so," said the customer dryly. "Maybe ye'll be given me a receipt now. Here's yer money."

Some enjoyable little side trips from Buffalo and Rochester will be made while he is at those two places, so that his visit will be made as pleasant for him as possible.

The annual reception for the Bellefonte Academy will be held at the Academy on the evening of Friday, June 2, and, of course, an invitation to all friends of the institution is cordially extended. Following the reception the annual dance, given by the Academy students, will be held in the Armory. Tomorrow afternoon, at 2.15 o'clock, the Academy baseball club will meet the strong Juniata college team, on Hughes field. This should be an exceptionally good game, the Juniata boys having beaten the Kiski and also the Indiana Normal clubs. On Saturday the Academy plays Susquehanna, at Susquehanna.

A very genial and interesting visitor in Bellefonte this week was Edward Greenslade, a brother of Mrs. William A. Lyon. Mr. Greenslade has traveled extensively and has seen much more of the world than has been the fortune of most persons. Mr. Greenslade is an Englishman and for many years was a tea expert for the British government. He accumulated a fortune in India, only to lose it in business in New York. He returned to India and again amassed considerable wealth, next engaging in the lumber business in the south. Next week Mr. Greenslade will sail from New York and will accompany a party of capitalists to central India, where he says the diamond industry is far more extensive and profitable than in Africa, supposedly the richest diamond field in the world.

The three Gramley brothers, C. L. and C. H., of Rebersburg, and T. M., of Spring Mills, made up a fine looking trio in the crowd of visitors in town last week for the Court House dedication. Each is possessed with a genial, happy disposition and when all three are together there isn't much room left for a gloomy view of life. All three are regular readers of "The Republican," and we very frankly admit that we are glad of it.

While Rev. V. L. Wagner and family have removed from Unionville to Buckhorn, Columbia County, they will be able to keep in touch with the doings of old friends in Centre County, an order having been received to enter Mr. Wagner on the list of subscribers to "The Republican." It will be a genuine pleasure to us to do so, for we know that each week the excellent Unionville letter in "The Republican" will make this newspaper a welcome visitor to the Wagner home.

J. S. Williams and Henry Clark, of Monument, both regular readers of "The Republican," were visitors here on Friday, coming for the Court House dedication. While in town they favored "The Republican" office with a call and Mr. Williams very kindly advanced his subscription another year. Mr. Williams is an efficient mine boss at Monument, while Mr. Clark is employed in the yards there. Both are good men and we are very glad to have them enrolled on our list of readers. Come again, gentlemen.

Player pianos are all the rage these days and it is really surprising the high state of perfection reached in the manufacture of these instruments. Every visitor to the music rooms of M. C. Gephart, in Allegheny Street, is more than surprised with the sweet tone and expression of the player pianos.

"I guess that's the best way to send him the news each week," remarked James Weaver, the Bellefonte painter, as he stopped the editor of "The Republican" on the street a day or two ago and handed over a one dollar bill, directing us to send this newspaper for one year to his brother, Henry Weaver, whose home is in Pittsburg. Jim knows his business, all right.

One good turn deserves another. Some time ago James L. Williams, of Scotia, subscribed for "The Republican" and directed it to be sent to the Williams home, at Scotia, in the name of his son, Merrill. Recently Merrill went to Pleasant Gap, where he helps conduct the Stitzer grocery store. Several days ago he ordered that "The Republican" be sent to him, to Pleasant Gap, and also that we continue sending it to Scotia, in the name of his father.

We are pleased to this week enroll J. B. Nearhoof, of Altoona, as a regular reader of "The Republican." D. O. Downing, of Port Matilda, one of the several aspirants for the Republican nomination for Sheriff, was a Bellefonte visitor yesterday and while in town paid his respects at "The Republican" office. Mrs. C. B. Williams and children, of Jersey City, are visiting at the home of Mrs. Williams' parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Lyon. Her fine looking and genial husband, Clair, is out in Milwaukee on a mission for the New York Central Railroad Company, of which he now is one of the big officials, and Mrs. Williams concluded that it would be a good time for she and the children to make their annual visit to Bellefonte.

After spending several weeks directing affairs at his store, in York, Jacob Finkelstine is back on the job at his 5, 10 and 25 cent store in Bellefonte. While Jacob was in York his brother, Maurice, was in charge of the Bellefonte store. By the way, suppose you examine Finkelstine's ad in another column of "The Republican." Just as like as not you will find some article you need and, if so, we are sure you will find the price amazingly low.

Postmaster John Gowland, of Philipsburg, veteran Republican and genial friend, was one of those to display sufficient time and trouble to attend the Court House dedication on Friday of last week. While his health has been somewhat impaired of late, Mr. Gowland possesses much more vigor than many who are younger. His numerous friends here were glad to see him, even though his stay was brief. While in town Mr. Gowland honored "The Republican" office with a call and advanced his subscription to this newspaper.

"Centre County is good enough for me," laughingly remarked William Cramer as he walked into "The Republican" office a few days ago. He directed that we change the address of his copy of "The Republican" from Friedensville, near Bethlehem, to Bellefonte, which we were very glad to do. Mr. Cramer has moved his family back to Centre County and they will make their home up Buffalo Run. During the last year they have resided at Friedensville, where Mr. Cramer was engaged in the dairy business. He met with gratifying success at that place, his patrons including the Charles M. Schwab and other wealthy families, but he and his wife and daughters were never quite reconciled to living away from Centre County and finally they sold out and moved back to "God's country." We are glad to have them back and are sure they will enjoy the year to come much more than the twelve months they were away.

B. H. S. Alumni Reception Postponed.

Inasmuch as the School Board has closed all the schools and discontinued the Commencement exercises for the present, with a possibility of holding the same later in the summer, on account of the prevalence of scarlet fever throughout the borough, it has therefore been decided by the officers and the committee of the Alumni Association to postpone the reception which was to have been held in the Armory on Wednesday, May the 31st, 1911. Should the Commencement exercises be held at a later date the reception also will be given at that time, and due notice thereof will be given to all members of the Association.

Hon. Sidney A. Foster,
Sec. R. U. M. L. Ins. CO.,
Des Moines, Ia.

My Dear Sir:

I have your favor of November 2nd stating that my policy for $1,000 issued by your company is now full paid and I may take a full paid participating policy for the amount of my original policy, $1,000, and receive in cash the surplus, $428, or take guaranteed cash value, $575, and in addition cash surplus, $428, making a total cash value of $1,003, or I may take a full paid policy for $1650. I have paid in premium $735.-20, leaving me a profit of $267.80.

This is very satisfactory to me, and fully justifies the confidence which I had twenty years ago in the then new Iowa company organized by Iowa men, and it is a pleasure to know that the same men continue to manage its affairs. I hereby elect to take a full participating policy and my cash surplus, believing that the participating policy payable at my death is a good investment and absolutely safe.

Hoping for your continued success, I am,
Yours respectfully,

J.L.S.--A.M. JOHN L. STEVENS.
